The facilities in the Nuclear Research Centre are not intended to be a mystery, despite the unlikely appearance of the Centre's building, north of Assiniboia Hall. This photograph was taken from the top of the tower, looking down on the Van de Graaff electrostatic generator, which is used to study the interaction of nuclear particles. The flatlooking disc attached to the cables is actually the top of a thick steel tank that houses the generator. Inside the tank, the pressure of the mixture of nitrogen, carbon dioxide, and sulfur hexafluoride is 15 times greater than normal atmospheric pressure.

The generator inside consists of a rubberized fabric belt that is run, by means of a motor, at high speed over two pulleys. As the belt moves upward, it picks up positive electricity and conveys it toward the large metal sphere. At the top, the positive charge is drawn off and an electrical potential is built up in the sphere. The maximum potential in the generator on campus is 5.5 million volts.

GATEWAY INVESTIGATION

A Canadian University Press (CUP) Commission conducted an investigation last week into the Gazette by-law, which was passed by Student Council October 4, 1971.

Members of the Commission were ED REED, Bureau Chief of CUP in Ottawa; DON MCGILLIVRAY, Associate Editor of the Edmonton Journal; and PAUL KNOX, News Editor of The Ubysey, the student newspaper at the University of British Columbia.

The investigation was called after a dispute arose between the Students' Union and The Gateway when Council passed a by-law forcing The Gateway to devote a half page to the Gazette, which would contain the minutes from Council meetings.

According to DON MCKENZIE, President of the Students' Union, The Gateway has not been providing adequate coverage of Council affairs. BOB BEAL, Editor of The Gateway, said he regards the by-law as "an attempt by Council to control the content of the paper. It is an intervention into the autonomy of the student newspaper."

Although the Commission has no legal power, the members will make recommendations regarding a solution to the dispute.

APPOINTMENT

The Reverend PAUL A. POIRIER has been appointed Acting Rector at Collège Saint-Jean.

Father Poirier succeeds the Reverend FRANK MCMAHON, who was appointed Dean of Collège Universitaire Saint-Jean last year.

The appointment, effective October 1, 1971, was announced by the Reverend THOMAS BILODEAU, O.M.I., Provincial of the Oblate Congregation Alberta-Saskatchewan.

Father Poirier received his Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Philosophy degrees at the University of Ottawa in 1958. After joining the Oblate Congregation, he studied in Rome where he received his Licence in Philosophy and Theology.

In 1966, after a two-year period at Mazenod College in Cameroon, Father Poirier returned to Canada and obtained his teaching certificate at The University of Alberta. He spent two years on the staff at Collège Saint-Jean before receiving a Canada Council Fellowship to study for his doctorate in religious science at the University of Pennsylvania. He now is completing his dissertation.

RESERVED PARKING FOR PARAPLEGICS

A limited number of parking spaces on the campus have been set aside for students and members of staff who must use wheelchairs. These spaces have been marked with a blue and white symbol showing a person in a wheelchair. In order that these places will be available for the persons for whom they are set aside, the Campus Security Force will issue tickets to others who park there.

The blue and white symbol is also being used to mark facilities on the campus that persons in wheelchairs can use without impediment . . . entrances to buildings, wide doorways, washrooms, public telephones, and so on. The symbol itself has been adopted by the International Society for the Rehabilitation of the Disabled. It will gradually replace other symbols in use here to indicate facilities for paraplegics.
